

Daily News Briefing: 2026-06-09

Executive Summary

- EU vs. Apple: The European Commission clarified that Apple alone decided not to launch Siri AI in Europe, citing regulatory hurdles under the Digital Markets Act.
- NHS AI Rollout: England's National Health Service plans to deploy 500,000 Microsoft Copilot licenses to clinicians to reduce administrative burdens.
- Ukraine Peace Talks: President Zelensky held surprise discussions with US envoys in Moldova regarding potential peace solutions for the ongoing conflict.
- European Defense Split: France and Germany have abandoned the joint FCAS fighter jet project following major disputes over control and technology.
- US-China Tensions: The Pentagon added major Chinese firms like BYD and Alibaba to its list of companies supporting the Chinese military.

Technology

EU Says Decision Not to Launch Siri AI in Europe Is Apple's Alone The European Commission stated that Apple independently chose not to launch its new Siri AI features in the EU due to regulatory compliance issues under the Digital Markets Act. While Apple claimed regulators rejected its proposals, the Commission argues the company sought a blanket exemption from interoperability rules instead of building a compliant solution. Source: Slashdot

Fitbit's Charge 6 and Ace LTE are now as cheap as the new $100 Air Fitbit is offering significant discounts on its Charge 6, Ace LTE, and new Air wearables at major retailers like Amazon and Best Buy. These deals bring prices under $100 for devices ranging from kids' trackers with parental controls to balanced fitness smartwatches. Source: The Verge

Screwworms in US: Human risk is low—but they can burrow through your skull Health officials are urging vigilance after recent case reports detailed deadly screwworm infestations in sensitive areas like the scalp and mouth. The CDC recommends keeping wounds covered and using insect repellent in affected areas, as larvae can be fatal if left untreated. Source: Ars Technica

AI

NHS Prescribes Half a Million Copilot Licenses For Its Paperwork Headache The NHS is rolling out Microsoft Copilot to approximately 505,000 staff members following a pilot that saved users an average of 43 minutes per day on administrative work. The AI assistant will help with discharge paperwork and data analysis, aiming to allow clinicians to focus more on patient care. Source: Slashdot

World & General

Hundreds of aftershocks jolt Philippines as officials say death toll could rise Strong aftershocks continue to strike the Philippines following a major disaster, with officials warning that the death toll may increase as search and rescue operations proceed. Assistant Secretary Bernardo Alejandro emphasized that rescue efforts remain the top priority amidst the ongoing seismic activity. Source: BBC News

Real Madrid's £130m Alvarez bid laughed off by Atletico Atletico Madrid has rejected a £130m offer from Real Madrid for striker Julian Alvarez, citing his £430m release clause and accusing their rivals of trying to steal players. The incident highlights the intensifying rivalry between the two Spanish giants as Real Madrid pursues high-profile transfers. Source: BBC News

Avionul european al viitorului e istorie: Cauzele eșecului proiectului FCAS The collaborative Future Combat Air System (FCAS) fighter jet project between France and Germany has been abandoned after years of disputes over control and intellectual property. The cancellation marks a significant setback for European defense cooperation and next-generation military aircraft development. Source: Antena 3

Pentagonul include producătorul de mașini electrice BYD și Alibaba pe lista companiilor care sprijină armata chineză The US Department of Defense has updated its list of Chinese entities to include 188 companies, adding tech giants like Alibaba and EV maker BYD due to ties with China's military industrial base. While the companies deny supporting military fusion strategies, the move underscores growing US concerns over Beijing's economic and defense capabilities. Source: Biziday

Zelenski dezvoltă o escală misterioasă la Chișinău: Am avut o discuție „foarte pozitivă” Ukrainian President Volodimir Zelensky revealed he held productive discussions with US emissaries Steve Witkoff and Jared Kushner during a stopover in Moldova. The talks focused on potential peace solutions for the Ukraine-Russia conflict and coordination ahead of possible G7 summit discussions. Source: Antena 3

Romania

Tomac acuză AUR că servește interesul lui Putin când îl amenință pe Nicușor Dan Premier-designate Eugen Tomac has accused the AUR party of serving Russian interests by threatening to suspend President Nicușor Dan from office. The political tension highlights concerns about stability in Romania as opposition parties clash with the government over governance issues. Source: Antena 3

Adunările Generale din instanțe și parchete sunt convocate pentru un punct de vedere pe noua lege a salarizării The Supreme Council of Magistracy has convened General Assemblies of Courts to address the new public sector salary law and what magistrates call a campaign to discredit the judiciary. This move underscores the friction between the judicial community and the government over recent legislative proposals. Source: Antena 3

Eugen Tomac, nouă rundă de negocieri pentru susținerea Guvernului Prime Minister-designate Eugen Tomac is meeting with parliamentarians to secure the 233 votes needed to pass his proposed government following the dissolution of the previous one. Negotiations involve various parliamentary groups, with Tomac promising vice-premiers for key areas like education and defense. Source: HotNews.ro

Eugen Tomac, despre Legea salarizării: Nu a fost făcut bine Premier-designate Tomac expressed disagreement with the proposed salary law, arguing it fails to effectively address increases for certain public institution categories. He aims